

Critical Access Hospitals Harness HIPAAAtrek to Find Compliance Confidence

A system for success.

Overview

Establishing consistent systems for HIPAA compliance at Critical Access Hospitals (CAH) can be a challenge, whether due to staffing constraints or inefficient processes.

By using HIPAAAtrek, compliance officers at CAHs can manage everything from contracts to policies and even training, all in one place. And, with built-in tracking that identifies areas of risk, the HIPAAAtrek platform can assure all stakeholders that data is secure—now that's compliance confidence.

“The software makes it easy to see where we’re at and where we need to be.”

The Challenge

While HIPAA compliance has been required of CAHs since the start of the program, many facilities face constraints in meeting the Federal standards of quality, privacy, and security. Inadequate staffing, inefficient research systems, and ineffective tracking via complicated spreadsheets leaves these organizations vulnerable to security incidents, breaches, and fines from regulatory organizations.

Our clients knew they needed a better way to meet compliance standards, and they found it with HIPAAAtrek.

The Solution

With HIPAAAtrek, compliance is no longer an overwhelming task. On one unified platform, compliance officers can manage Business Associate Agreements (BAAs), HIPAA and other regulatory policies, security reminders, and training.

For Joanie Perkins, of North Sunflower Medical Center in Louisiana, the simplicity is key. “The software makes it easy to walk through and see where we’re at, and where we need to be,” Joanie said.

The Results

With personalized, one-on-one onboarding with the HIPAAAtrek team, it was easy for Joanie to implement the new software, import existing information, and get up and running quickly. And when questions do come up, the team is quick to respond.

With HIPAAAtrek, Joanie and the North Sunflower Medical Center team found a solution that not only makes day-to-day tasks faster, but also makes tracking compliance straightforward. Confident in their compliance, they are able to assure patients, practitioners, and their Board of Directors that their facility and its data are secure.
